

Cell Activator

Dietary Supplement

This is an exceptionally powerful formula, supplying the body with special nutrients, B-Vitamins and a combination of botanical factors. Cell Activator is designed to help increase the absorption and effectiveness of your vitamin and mineral intake and support your body's energy production, to help your body perform more efficiently. This remarkable formula, helps to maintain vitality and good health. When used daily, Cell Activator can contribute to your well-being.

Every activity you do, from breathing to dancing to thinking, depends on a constant supply of energy. To ensure you have energy in a readily available form, the cells in your body have their own tiny powerhouses, called mitochondria. Through a series of biochemical processes, the mitochondria create energy from the food you eat.

For these biochemical processes to function optimally, your body needs a regular supply of essential nutrients. Because of poor diet, poor digestion or high levels of stress, many people fail to supply their body with enough of these essential nutrients. As a result, food utilisation may be less than optimum and energy production can be reduced.

Cell Activator's blend of nutrients and plants is specifically designed to help support your utilisation of the nutritional value from the food that you eat. It may also help your body to absorb and assimilate the nutrients in your diet more efficiently. It contains three important plants: chlorella, cordyceps and arctic root, all believed to support the body's capacity for coping with stress. It also contains three essential B-Vitamins for this purpose. By taking Cell Activator throughout the day, you can help ensure your body's production of energy stores is being supported, and optimise your use of essential nutrients.
